were ordered off the street by Police-men Farmer and Howard, the former having met Howard near that point on his way from duty in the East End. The white man said he would take her to friends in Broad Oaks. The officers proceeded on their way home on Monticello avenue but were attracted by a shot as they reached Main street and they retraced their steps and met street car men, who stated that the report was made by the explosion of a torpedo. The officers were informed that a railroad man had gone by and stated that he believed there were a man and woman in the alley back of the Southern Pine place. The officers then went to the East End with the street car men and returning crossed through Park avenue and went home. A day or so afterward Officer Farmer was called to the Corner saloon on official business and there the woman told him that Howard stole her bracelet. Farmer replied that if she would go over to the alley she would likely find the bracelet. The same day he went over and found the bracelet in a small pocketbook.

The morning of Saturday, September 26, Officer Howard was suspended for leaving his beat and going on the fair ground, as stated to him by the chief of police. Saturday evening after Howard had been suspended the chief in talking to Farmer about the suspension said he had been told Howard had the woman's bracelet. Farmer replied that Howard did not have it but that he had it and told how he had found it. He also added that whenever the woman would make affidavit to the ownership of it she could have it. The officer says the pocketbook it was in and found by him in the alley contained only twenty-five or thirty cents. The officers claim they have been unjustly charged and all they demand is fair play and justice.
